

→Current national reduction system is a Westphalian world where national interests militate against each other...could fail our climate battle...
 →Market (with safety net for poorer countries) could be a way to avoid such failure, save the planet and economies of the world...

The Durban Platform must achieve acceptable temperature target and get poorer countries on board toward sustainable clean growth...

For surest solutions, paradigm shift is indispensable....
 Global carbon market rather than national abatement system based on governments ambitions....

The Durban Platform must achieve acceptable temperature target and get poorer countries on board toward sustainable clean growth...at the same time

Achieving both temperature target like 2C and clean SD for developing countries
